OUR HISTORY

In 1815 John Doulton didn't know he could move mountains, but he invested his life savings – £100 in a small London pottery operation. Call it luck, wisdom or business acumen, but from a maker of storage jars and ceramic sewage pipes grew a leader in design-driven, technically innovative manufacturer of fine tableware. Ours is a story of many firsts, from innovating new materials and glazing techniques, to collaborating from the beginning with artists and designers, and focusing on educating and empowering women.

In the course of 200 years, our focus on bringing premium quality and exceptional design to everybody's table has been a resounding success. Earning us not one but two Royal Warrants, and the continuing love of fans the world over. And although city regulations pushed the Factory out of London in the late 1950s, Royal Doulton is still inspired by the stories and flavours of our capital city, while drawing new inspiration from cultures and communities across the globe.

1815 · PACIFIC

Inspired by the sea and surrounding landscapes, the patterns within the best-selling Pacific collection are crisp and fluid, influenced by shells, sea urchins, rock formations and the gentle irregularities of sea shore textures including the surprise of beach discoveries such as driftwood. The six porcelain designs: splash, dots, lines, texture, circle and brush stroke have a hand-made, perfectly-imperfect look and feel - captivating in their own way but truly striking when placed together. Pacific is a wonderfully adaptable collection, perfect for presenting and sharing food with family and friends, an invitation to get outdoors for a garden party and entertain in style.

ROYAL DOULTON

Exclusively for

GORDON RAMSAY

Multi-Michelin-starred chef Gordon Ramsay is a name we are all familiar with. His award-winning kitchens produce some of the finest dishes in the world, and back in 2005, we collaborated to create Royal Doulton exclusively for Gordon Ramsay. It began in one of Gordon's restaurants, progressing to a casual yet classic collection, embracing the changing landscape in food.

With each collection, we looked to Gordon's diverse restaurants and their accompanying themes to create pieces that would stand the test of time, just like our partnership with Gordon.

ROYAL DOULTON

Exclusively for

MAZE

The Maze Collection is contemporary and stylish, yet durable enough for everyday use. Pick from fresh white, teal or light grey, or discover the new Maze Denim colourway in dark blue. The colours within this tableware collection work effortlessly to create an understated but elegant backdrop for everyday meals. Each piece has a subtle glaze and features embossed circles drawing your eye to the centre of the piece, along with the food on it.

JACK THE BULLDOG

Figures of bulldogs were first made by Royal Doulton in the 1940s. The ceramic versions created during the Second World War featured flags and hats representing the army, navy and air force - honouring the bravery and determination of military personnel and the UK's Prime Minister, Winston Churchill. Today this handsome dog breed (Jack the bulldog) continues to symbolise the steely determination of the British character. Royal Doulton's Jack the bulldog, famous for his cameo roles in James Bond "Skyfall" and "Spectre", returned to the screen once more in the most recent James Bond movie, "No Time To Die".
